

23.01.2023 Whole School Assembly: Respecting, Understanding and Appreciating Difference

This week's assembly was delivered by the fantastic Mr Brassil about an 'idea'. That we can only really understand something if we see lots of different examples of it. We looked at the features that make an elephant an elephant, and the features that make a triangle a triangle.

We also thought about how this applies to our school community- the fact that we can only really understand each other by finding out about the variety of people in school and how richly diverse we are.

Edward in 6G quickly picked up the fact the British Value we were thinking about was respecting, understanding and appreciating difference- we're all in one school, but are unique at the same time. Mind blowing at times, but brilliant and inspiring.

Thank you Mr Brassil.
